

FOUR MAGAZINE DEALERS CONFER HERE ON DRIVE FOR CLEAN PRINT

Reporting progress in their campaign to purge Adams county communities of indecent reading matter through their Legion of Decency, members of a committee of Catholic women leading the movement and rectors of two of the largest Catholic parishes in the county conferred at the court house Monday afternoon with District Attorney John P. Butt and four magazine distributors.

The distributors, who represented the Hanover News agency and the American News company, and the district attorney were handed by the committee a list "about 75" publications that are held to be "objectionable" because of the type of advertising, reading material or illustrations they contain.

Going over the list of publications individually, the group discussed the merits of each and sought to learn the agency handling them. Following the conference it was reported that the distributors had informed the committee that many, although not a majority, of the objectionable magazines are "bootleg matter" and are not handled by established dealers.

Warns Distributors
 The committee and the district attorney warned the distributors present from Hanover, York and Harrisburg they must conform to the federal postal regulations regarding the sending of indecent or immoral literature through the mails. The committee members said they have the promise of the district attorney to investigate the prevalence and source of "bootleg" printed matter that may be on sale in Adams county.

The committee heard that "bootleg" publications are either very scarce or entirely lacking on news stands in this county. Committee members say magazine news stands are located only in Gettysburg, New Oxford, Littlestown and McSherrystown in this county. Other county towns either have no agencies or do not handle any of the objectionable types of publications.

A spokesman for the committee said that the matter of prosecutions for handling the indecent printed matter or pictures is to be taken up at a conference to be held by the district attorneys of this section of the state.

Some Improvement Seen
 At Monday's meeting it was stated that since the campaign against objectionable publications was launched many magazines have made much improvement in the materials contained in their recent issues. Some that previously were on the "black list" have been transferred to the approved publications, it was stated.

The group at Monday's conference included the following: The Rev. Fr. Mark E. Stock, rector of St. Francis Xavier Catholic church of Gettysburg; the Rev. Fr. Patrick F. McGee, rector of St. Mary's Catholic church, McSherrystown, and these members of the Coneyaw Denary committee on indecent reading matter—Mrs. John Klunk, Miss Gertrude Lilly and Mrs. Violet Rice, all of McSherrystown; Mrs. P. R. Rowe, Gettysburg; Mrs. Stanley Paluskevich, also of Gettysburg, and Miss Mary Golden, Bonneauville.

The injured man was in a shock-like condition on his admittance to the hospital and was unable to be questioned as to how the accident happened.

'DR. RANDLE' IS INDICTED FOR FALSE PRETENSE

News reports from Washington, D. C., tell of the indictment recently of a Rosalyn Randle, believed to be the Mrs. Helen Randle, self-styled dietitian, psychologist and psychiatrist who lectured in Gettysburg in July, 1933, and pled her trade in this county for several weeks. "Rosalyn" Randle has been indicted on a false pretense charge.

Gettysburg last heard from Mrs. Randle in November of 1937 when state motor police here were asked by Wareham, Massachusetts, officers for information on her record. A teletype message received here told of the arrest of Mrs. Randle at Wareham on a charge of "illegal practice of medicine." She was known there as Doctor Randle. Police gave her age as 58. When she was here in 1933 she said she was 32.

Mrs. Randle lectured in a Gettysburg church for two days in 1933 under the auspices of a local organization and found business so lucrative that she rented a mountain cottage on Mount Newman and stayed for several weeks. She disappeared suddenly one morning just before officers arrived to serve papers on her in connection with false pretense charges and an assumption of action at Harrisburg in which a brokerage firm sought to recover about $3,000 of which Mrs. Randle was charged with having swindled them.

Weeks later a time was set for trial of the case at Harrisburg but Mrs. Randle sent word from the south that she had been injured in an automobile accident and could not appear. In January of 1934, she was arrested in Alabama on New Jersey charges after a chase across four states. Later reports reached here she was "practicing" in Abilene, Kansas, where she claimed to be a dietitian consultant for Hollywood movie stars.

The Washington newspaper has the following to say about the Randle case:

"Rosalyn Randle, who has lectured in packed halls to audiences in every state in the union under the billing of 'America's Most Masterful Mind and Body Builder,' (Continued on Page Two)

YORK MOTORIST IS ACQUITTED IN SPEEDING CASE

A York motorist who appealed to the Adams county court for a hearing on a speeding charge from the office of a justice of the peace won a decision of not guilty from Judge W. C. Sheely in court here Monday afternoon. The judge directed that the defendant, Robert T. Spangler, 344 Norway street, York, must pay the costs of the case which amount to more than $26.

Had he paid his fine and costs before the justice his total bill would have been $12.50 but then he would have been liable for a 90-day license suspension for a conviction for speeding.

Spangler had been arrested on September 19 on the Lincoln highway east of here on a charge of speeding at 58 miles an hour. Corporal J. G. Warren, the arresting officer from the Gettysburg detail of the state motor police, testified he followed Spangler for two miles at speeds of between 58 and 60 miles an hour. Spangler was stopped near Guldens.

Companions Support Driver

The defendant and his four companions, who, Spangler said, would lose their jobs with his at Mont Alto if he should lose his operator's license, testified the car's speed ranged between 45 and 50 miles an hour while the officer was following. Spangler said he knew he was being followed by a policeman. He stated also that a short time later he had the speedometer of his car tested and it was found to be "two miles an hour slow."

Argument was heard Monday afternoon in the assumpsit case by E. G. Whited, Gettysburg R. D. vs. the Freystown Mutual Fire Insurance company of York county. The case went before a jury last month and answers to seven questions placed before the jury for decision were secured. Opposing attorneys argued their cases before the court where final decision is waited in the case involving insurance on a building which was destroyed by fire about two years ago along the Lincoln highway east of here.

COMMISSION GETS BID FOR UNSOLD COINS

An offer to purchase the unsold balance of the Gettysburg commemorative half-dollars has been received by the Pennsylvania State commission. The Gettysburg Times learned today.

Details of the contemplated transaction could not be learned at the commission headquarters here today, a spokesman stating that he could not reveal the name of the prospective buyer or the nature of the offer. He did confirm the reported rumor that an offer had been received by the commission from a person of "good repute" to purchase the unsold balance of the commemorative half-dollars.

It was announced at the commission offices that the Gettysburg half-dollars will remain on sale until January 1, 1939, after which the sale of the coins will be discontinued. It previously had been announced that the unsold balance of the coins, if any, will be returned to the mint to be melted and that no further issue of the Gettysburg half-dollars would ever be minted.

When the commission closes its books on the coin sale there will not be any coins available for general purchase except through those who have purchased them prior to December 31, 1938, and who wish or consent to sell what they have in their possession. It is not likely, the commission statement continued, that anyone would dispose of their half-dollars at a price lower than the original purchase price.

It was stated further at the commission offices that the coins would not be sold to anyone who would in turn place the half-dollars on the open market, nor would they be sold at "slashed prices." The commission is not desirous of "flooding the market" or do anything that might reduce the intrinsic or sentimental value of the coins.

There has been a spurt in the sale of the coins since the announcement that the half-dollars would be returned to the mint on January 1st, and many Gettysburgians have taken advantage of this last opportunity to secure the valued pieces.

U. S. MEDICAL GROUP INDICATED ON 'TRUST' COUNT

Washington, Dec. 20 (AP).—The American Medical association, three local medical societies and 21 individual physicians were indicted today by a federal grand jury for violation of the Sherman anti-trust act.

The societies named were the Medical Society of the District of Columbia, the Harris County, (Texas) Medical society, and the Washington (D. C.) Academy of Surgery. Among the 21 physicians indicted were Dr. Olin West, secretary of the American medical association; Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the American Medical Association's Journal; Dr. Arthur C. Christie, prominent Washington radiologist and Dr. Prentiss Willson, who recently cooperated in filing a suit against the Washington Group Health association, charging that group health physicians had injured his practice in furnishing medical service through the association.

Charges Restraint of Trade
Others indicted are officials of the American Medical association, or its affiliated societies. The Department of Justice instituted proceedings against the American Medical association last October, charging that it was acting in restraint of trade, in violation of the anti-trust act.

Specifically it charged that the association, some local societies and individual physicians were preventing other physicians and co-operative medical organizations from supplying medical service by refusing membership in medical societies to individual physicians who joined such groups.

Particularly involved were the affairs of Group Health Association, Inc. This co-operative agency was established more than a year ago, offering medical care and hospitalization to some 2,600 government employees for $2.20 each per month. It put its staff of doctors on a salary basis.

The district society, an affiliate of the A.M.A., promptly attacked the plan as leading toward the compulsory insurance systems in vogue in Germany and elsewhere in Europe. The society denounced such systems as undermining high standards of medical practice and likely to break down the close relationship of the physician and his patient.

Cite 'Opposition' Policy
The association accused the society of hampering its activities by threatening exclusion of its doctors from hospitals and thus restraining their efforts to earn a living.

Group health contended its purposes were beneficial to the public and the profession, particularly that it might reduce illness by insuring ready access to "preventive" medicine.

In summing up the reasons for the indictments the grand jury declared that the American Medical association and the individual physicians named "have adopted and for many years have pursued a policy of opposition" to experiments in group medical care, "and have taken affirmative steps to oppose their formation and operation throughout the United States."

"Exclusion or expulsion from membership in a medical society affiliated with the defendant American Medical association, and hence from membership in the association itself" deprives group health doctors of their rights and injures their professional standing, the jury found.

The jury's action was unprecedented in the annals of medicine in this country, said Justice department officials who declared there was no record on file of anti-trust action against practicing physicians. The law provides a penalty of one year imprisonment, payment of $5,000 fine, or both.

The indictment upheld the privilege of private physicians to treat their patients in well-equipped hospitals.

"Such privileges is desirable for all practicing doctors," the jury held. "Exclusion from hospitals of surgeons and physicians, including those engaged in group practice on a risk sharing pre-payment basis, seriously restrains them in the pursuit of their callings."

Fishbein Comments
Chicago, Dec. 20 (AP).—Dr. Morris Fishbein, spokesman for the American Medical association, when informed of the federal indictments returned in Washington today for violation of the Sherman anti-trust act, said: "The house of delegates has authorized the board of directors of the American Medical association to defend the case to the limit."

was indicted on a false pretense charge by the District grand jury. "The indictment against Miss Randle, who is a graduate of four colleges and a holder of three degrees, grew out of a $500 transaction in which she allegedly promised to cure a University of Pennsylvania student of a non-existent suicide complex."

"Miss Randle was charged in the indictment with intent to defraud Catherine H. Reed, 3200 block, Hiatt Place, by telling her that her son, Rufus, was weak willed and had an unbalanced mind that eventually would lead him to suicide unless he was cured."

"Mrs. Reed told the grand jury that Miss Randle said her treatment had proved effective in curing the heir to the Reynolds tobacco millions of a similar suicide complex. Miss Randle told her, she added, that she had taken the Reynolds' heir to the island of Crete and was paid a very large sum for her services."

"Mrs. Reed asserted Miss Randle told her she had letters from officials at the University of Pennsylvania stating that the presence there of young Reed created a danger for the entire student body. These officials later denied all this, she charged."

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT SENDS CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

In sending them his Christmas greetings, President Roosevelt, honorary president of the Boy Scouts of America, in which he has been active for seventeen years, called upon the 1,221,338 Boy Scouts, Cubs and leaders of the nation "to do a good deed for some other person, especially for someone who is less fortunate than ourselves."

The President's message was received today by Scout Executive Zaner from Dr. James E. West, chief scout executive and editor of "Boys' Life."

The message follows:
THE WHITE HOUSE WASHINGTON TO THE BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA:

As a member of the Boy Scouts of America, I am happy to extend to fellow members, my sincere best wishes for a Merry Christmas. This is a time in which it seems particularly appropriate for all of us to do a good deed for some other person, especially for someone who is less fortunate than ourselves. To Boy Scouts who are steadfast in the principles emphasized by their organization I look for future leadership in community and national life. May the year 1939 be a happy adventure for you in the service of others.

Wants Utility to Print Rate Card

Harrisburg, Dec. 20 (AP).—Richard J. Beamish, public utility commissioner, suggested today that the Pennsylvania Power and Light company print rate cards so customers could "figure their electric bills as easily as grocery bills."

Beamish's proposal followed filing by the utility Monday of new tariffs cutting rates to its 367,000 customers $2,300,000 annually. The reductions were ordered by the commission, and are effective on bills submitted after January 1.

Beamish halted the new simplified tariffs as "what I've been fighting for years."

"The mystic maze of 107 schedules has been reduced to seven, and I am now suggesting that the company print a clear, simple rate card that can be hung in the kitchen so customers can figure their electric bills as easily as grocery bills," he added.

The reduction directed by the commission apply to 92 per cent of the company's electric consumers in 28 eastern and central counties. Of the total, 312,000 residential customers would save $880,000 a year; 54,000 commercial users, $1,149,000; and 1,000 large commercial and industrial consumers, $425,000.

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 20 (AP).—The Commercial Appeal said today it had been reliably informed that the Rev. The former dean's present status in the church is that of priest-without-charge.

The 46-year-old clergyman was dean of St. Mary's for 17 years. Bishop James M. Maxon who deposed him, described as a "vagary" his fast, undertaken to provide living proof of immortality.

GOERING ASKS AMERICAN TO REFUGEE STUDY

London, Dec. 20 (AP).—Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering today invited George Rublee, American director of the international refugee office, to visit Berlin to complete the German financial plan for getting Jews out of Germany.

Rublee is the permanent executive in charge of the international committee assisting refugees, a group whose principal efforts in the last several months have been sent toward aiding German Jews.

The invitation from Goering, chief of the Nazi four-year economic self-sufficiency plan, came on the heels of the visit to London last week of Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, on an unofficial mission attempting to arrange the financial end of Jewish emigration.

It also came after Prime Minister Chamberlain, in common Monday, said he was "still waiting for a sign from those who speak for the German people" that they were ready to make "their contribution" for European peace.

Informed quarters said Goering and Adolf Hitler in drafting their emigration proposal had in mind a two-year plan under which all the 600,000 Jews remaining in Germany would leave the reich.

EDUCATORS SEEK SALES TAX AND INCOME LEVY

Harrisburg, Dec. 20 (AP).—A two per cent state sales tax and a three per cent levy on incomes were recommended by a committee of the Pennsylvania State Education association today to provide "more liberal financial support" to schools of the state.

The committee on a survey of school costs drafted a tax program which included measures it said would yield $65,000,000 a year and abolish some existing taxes producing $60,000,000 for a net gain of $5,000,000.

The committee suggested that food, gasoline and liquor be exempted from the retail sales tax and that the levy on earned income include a uniform $1,800 exemption.

A footnote in the report pointed to the action of the state Supreme court in throwing out a $1,000 rebate "amounting in effect to an exemption" in the proposed Philadelphia wage tax, and said:

"In the event that the court should take the same attitude with regard to a state levy, the subcommittee recommends that a flat rate, no exemption income tax be substituted for the sales tax and the net income tax, such levy to be imposed at a rate to assure approximately the same yield as would be derivable from the sales tax and the uniform personal income tax combined."

The report of the committee, headed by J. Frank Faust, of Chambersburg, president of the association, will be presented to the organization's annual convention here December 27, 28 and 29.

Dr. Lester K. Ade, state superintendent of Public Instruction, was a member of the committee which drafted the report.

The committee coupled its recommendations for changes in the sources of revenue with another for creation of a state tax commission of nine members to make continuous study of the Commonwealth's tax problems and submit reports to the governor and the legislature. The state bar association also has urged creation of a tax commission.

Child Killed Going For Mother's Gift

Los Angeles, Dec. 20 (AP).—Little Maria Carillo, 10, watched her mother decorate their small Christmas tree. Then she went into a bedroom and took the 10 pennies she had saved and hidden in a drawer.

"I'm going to get mommy something," she whispered to her brother, David, 14.

Happily, she ran from the house. Several blocks away she started across the street to a store. She hadn't noticed a big bus bearing down. Brakes screeched, but the driver couldn't stop. The bus struck Maria. Pennies scattered on the pavement.

In a hospital, Mrs. Dolores Carillo sobbed over Maria's broken body: "I didn't want a present, honey. I only wanted you..."

BUYING POWER DROPS

VET QUINTETS CLASH TONIGHT

This evening the Gettysburg high school cagers will play their final pre-holiday game and their final tuneup game before the opening of the Southern Pennsylvania interscholastic league by entertaining Martinsburg high on the local court.

Preceding the varsity game the Maroon reserves will meet Coach Ellmore Slaybaugh's Fairfield high hoopers in the preliminary game at 7 o'clock.

Having split even in their first two efforts the Maroons are anxious to halt the strong West Virginia outfit. The locals were decidedly off-color in their shooting against John Harris last Friday and have been working hard to polish up in that department.

Tonight's game will be a battle between veteran teams. Last year the Maroons emerged victorious 17-15 after a bitter battle. Practically the same teams that faced each other on that occasion will be in the opening lineup this evening.

Sports Roundup

By DREW MIDDLETON
New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—Mike Jacobs will announce that Baer-Nova bout Wednesday. He's waiting to hear from madcap Max now and plans a two-week vacation in Florida when the fight is made. Miguel is a touch peeved over the national boxing association's rating of Tony Galento as the No. 1 challenger to Joe Louis. Mike rates Galento no better than eighth on his own list, which has John Henry Lewis, Baer and Nova bracketed on the top rung. By a strange prank of fate Lewis will fight the champion next and either Baer or Nova will have a shot at him in 1939. "My list includes box office attraction too," revealed Jacobs. . . no kidding.

LOOKING AROUND

LOOKING forward to perhaps the most strenuous basketball schedule in many seasons, Coach Henry T. Bream will call back 13 members of the Gettysburg college varsity squad to resume drills after a shortened Christmas vacation in Friday December 30. A single drill will be held Friday evening but double workouts are scheduled for Saturday and Monday. Single sessions will start on Tuesday, January 2, when classes at college are resumed. The Bullets are scheduled to meet Navy at Annapolis, Maryland, Saturday afternoon, January 7 in the opening game of the season. Those who will report on December 30 are Weems, O'Neill, Bommer, Yovicsin, Hamilton, Simon, Bailey, Levens, R. Fischer, K. Fischer, A. Bender, Trimmer and R. Lefever.

Although the Bullets have been drilling but a short time it appears that "Baldy" Hamilton is to be made into a guard. Hamilton's job will be, filling the post left vacant by the graduation of "Bob" Yevak, the only regular lost to the squad. Johnny Yovicsin will replace Hamilton at his old forward position and will pair off with Ken Bommer. O'Neill will again be at center with Tom Weems at guard.

A testimonial dinner was tendered the undefeated Darby high school football team Monday evening at Darby. The team is coached by Ralph "Rabbit" Stover, former Gettysburg college athlete and a native of Gettysburg. Stover is coaching out his twelfth season as coach at Darby. During that time his football teams won 60 games, lost 31 and tied 17. Henry T. Bream was one of the guests of honor at the banquet.

BIGLerville high school's courtmen will play their first home game of the season this evening with Boiling Springs high in a West Shore interscholastic league game. The girls' teams are scheduled to clash at 7 o'clock.

Both the Arendtsville boys and girls' teams will seek their third straight victory this evening against Washington Township on the latter's court.

4 in Coast Guard Plane Crash Victims

San Antonio, Tex., Dec. 20 (AP).—A flaming United States coast guard plane crashed at Boerne, 30 miles northwest of here, killing four men late Monday night.

The dead were identified as: Lieut. P. S. Lyons, unit commander of the coast guard at El Paso.
Rupert H. Germaine, United States coast guard El Paso.

George C. Latham, enlisted man, Fort Bliss, El Paso.

C. H. Peague, United States naval ensign, El Paso.

The ship was seen in flames as it passed over Boerne.
Sheriff Ed Hirschswale said he believed the pilot headed south after the plane caught fire in order to avoid landing within the town's limits. It crashed in a pasture only a few feet from the heavily traveled San Antonio-Boerne highway.

The bodies were charred and torn until none was recognizable. Bits of flesh were strewn over a two-acre area.

known as Lee's headquarters, to P. F. Hennig, for $740.

Burning of the W. M. Engine House: At 1 o'clock Thursday morning our people were awakened by cries of fire and the rapid ringing of the Engine House bell. The alarm was caused by the discovery of fire in the engine house of the Western Maryland R. R. It was first seen by Henry Barbehenn, who was on duty at the gas house, but being alone and unable to leave his post for any length of time, he did not succeed in arousing the neighborhood until the flames were under way. The Fire Company responded promptly, and did hard and efficient work. The building was isolated and the night being comparatively calm there was not much danger of the flames spreading, and the principal exertions were devoted to saving the two engines, one passenger and one freight, in the house. Firemen and railroad employees at the peril of personal injury, vied with each other to remove the property. Engineer Colgan succeeded in running his engine but with the cabin burning around him and the roof momentarily in danger of falling in. The other engine was drawn out, but not until it had been badly damaged. The Woodwork of the engine house and about half of the roof were burned, and the walls, although standing, are considerably damaged. All the firemen did their full duty, and among the most active and alert was the veteran of the company, Mr. Samuel Herbst. Mr. H. D. Scott, Superintendent of the Baltimore and Harrisburg Division, returned the grateful thanks of the Company to the Fire Company for its valuable services.

The loss is estimated at $800; insurance $450. The origin of the fire is mysterious; some think it was caused by spontaneous combustion, others that it was of incendiary origin.

REINDEER EXPRESS HURRIES
"KEEP well covered up," Willy Nilly told Sweet Face, the lamb "It's snowing hard."

"Oh, Willy Nilly, you look all the more like Santa Claus. Your whiskers are white and you'll have a white beard before you know it!"

The reindeer were hurrying more than ever. Willy Nilly had stopped to do several things before leaving, but the reindeer knew how to make up time. Willy Nilly had given them a good meal of moss before leaving and they felt as though they wanted to race against the snow and the wind.

"I'm not a bit cold, are you, Willy Nilly?" bleated Sweet Face, whose head just peeped up above the heavy robes they had over them.

"Not a bit," shouted Willy Nilly. "You don't think this storm will delay us, do you?" Sweet Face asked.

"Not when we have the Reindeer Express making time! Nothing will delay any of Santa's reindeer."

The reindeer heard what Willy Nilly said, and it seemed as though they passed great forests and meadows and villages and then wide, lonely stretches before Willy Nilly and Sweet Face could even say another word to each other.

"Baa, baa" bleated Sweet Face, "this is thrilling. I like this! I am having adventures without having to plan them for myself. I'm being taken right along."

"The reindeer express does indeed make time," agreed Willy Nilly.

They passed Santa Claus on their way but he was in such a hurry to get back to the places he was going to visit that he only had time to wave his right arm and shout a cheery greeting, while both teams of reindeer gave an extra jingle to their bells.

Now Sweet Face and Willy Nilly were at Santa's workshop.

The Misses Anna M. and Margaret Mary Klunk, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Klunk, 569 Carlisle street, Hanover, escaped injury when their sedan slipped off the icy road near Hunterstown, Saturday morning, and turned over on its top. PAY

A WORKMAN who is worthy of his hire often has to wait a long time before that fact is recognized by the world. George Gissing often sold some of his stories for no more than to feebly nourish his body with a few bags of peanuts!

Probably the most famous song in all this world is that one by John Howard Payne—"Home, Sweet Home." It first appeared in the opera "Clari," produced at Covent Garden, in London, on May 8th, 1823. "Payne knew very little about music, but he had jotted down a few notes of an air that he had heard a girl singing in Italy, writing the words to this measure. Henry A. Bishop, his composer, recognized the air as Ranz des Vaches and re-arranged it for the opera. Payne got about $250 for the play, and not a penny for the song!" (Familiar Quotations, Wesleyan Exhibit Catalog)

The play, for which Payne was paid, lasted but 12 nights—the song, however, became instantly famous, and will be beloved forever. Payne's name was even omitted from the first edition of its printing!

Stevenson was given hardly enough for his famous book, "Treasure Island," to pay for a few weeks of living. I believe the price was only $100. At the time, however, he was overjoyed at its sale. His richest pay was recognition.

A man's biggest pay is not contained in the little envelope that is given to him at the close of a week of toil. It is in the satisfaction of having done something constructive, something of worth to his inner life, and to the world at large. People who work only for immediate pay lose life's choicest gift.

Could mere pay compensate for the production of a Lincoln Gettysburg address? How much do you think that Shakespeare should have received for his plays? The late Frank Bacon once told me that he had turned down an offer of $100,000 for a screen rendition of Lightnin'—"because," said he, "I am not commercial!" The mere friendship of that lovable character was beyond all price.

The usual, and nearly always the first, question asked by a prospective employee is this: "How much will you pay?" But the employer's first question is: "What can you do?"

The Characters

Noel Marchand, a beautiful young actress.
Allan Collings, a young man Noel likes.
David Norris, Noel's wealthy suitor.

Yesterday: Noel and Mrs. Marchand select people for the Christmas house party. Noel learns that Elaine, Allan's old love has returned, divorced.

Chapter Five

Christmas Shopping

The theater tonight with David didn't seem so alluring as it would have a week ago. Her mind was on the coming Christmas party.

It was while Noel was relaxing after her shower and before she put on her dinner gown that saw it! In the afternoon paper. The gorgeously tall figure, all swathed in sables, alighting from the transcontinental plane at Newark Airport that morning. A coolly beautiful face, looking calmly superior as the cameramen snapped her. And, underneath the, the caption:

The popular Elaine Corey Schuyler, back home from Reno with her freedom from the equally popular Vincent Schuyler.

And so, as the society reporter dramatically wrote, "endeth the story that started with their elopement last Christmas Eve."

Elaine—Christmas Eve—Elopement!

The words registered one by one on Noel's consciousness. She knew instinctively, though she couldn't tell why, that this was Allan's lost love, Elaine.

And Elaine was back in New York—free!

"I wish we could go into rehearsals tomorrow!"

Eagerly, Noel leaned across the table toward Douglas Swanstrom, her eyes lighted with enthusiasm. She and David were having luncheon in the Chinese Room with the stage producer.

David had sat by quietly while Swanstrom told Noel casually that the play he was considering might be started before the holidays. "The lead's just suited to you," was the way he told her she would be in it.

In the sudden wave of hope that filled her as she heard his calmly uttered remark, Noel forgot everything else—loneliness, the coming Christmas, everything but the possibility that she might be working again.

"Douglas, you don't know what it means to me. The last two engagements were such disaster."

Swanstrom sipped his coffee and relaxed in his chair. He smiled at David, who was being quiet on his side of Noel.

"Now don't get too excited, Noel," he suggested. "It all depends on Dixon. He has to rewrite the third act and you know how unreliable that self-estimated genius is. He'll promise anything. But he's sworn he'll have the revised script by Monday."

"I'll feel like poisoning him if he doesn't," Noel vehemently exclaimed. She looked closely at Swanstrom as she asked slowly, "But I thought you said there was no possibility of getting the backing until after the holidays?"

Swanstrom chuckled and looked over at David. "Well, maybe a Christmas angel came early this year, dear," was the only information he offered.

Noel gazed searchingly at David. Could David be planning an angel role—and why? "It couldn't be any chance but you in the role of play angel could it David?"

Norris' face flushed. He sent a furtive glance to Swanstrom. "Whatever would make you think of such a thing?" was all that he answered.

They talked about casting and sets and the possibility of the right theater.

"I was crazy about the part of Gilda when I read the first draft," Noel said it like a prayer. "And I'm sure with the revisions you mention it's bound to go over."

"Only time and the public can tell about that," was the way Swanstrom put it.

It was only after Swanstrom had left them and Noel told David she was meeting Mrs. Marchand and her son to shop for the gifts they would have for the Christmas party, David remarked:

"But, Noel, if the plans for the play go through you won't be able to visit them."

"That's true," Noel's voice came slowly, reluctantly. "But the play's more important than anything else in the world—you know that, David. Though I really would hate to miss that beautiful party."

"A Lot Of Waiting"

David didn't answer her. They left the Chinese Room and as they walked through the lobby, David said in what he tried to make a casual voice:

"Before you joined us, Swanstrom asked me when we were getting married." He looked down on the flushed face of the girl beside him. "I'd like to be able to tell him tomorrow, darling." He bent his head down to her as he said it.

"David, please, not now—there's so much else to worry about. Wait until after things are more settled for me."

"I've been doing quite a lot of waiting, you know." David's voice was tinged with bitterness.

Noel walked on and as they approached the taxi line he seemed a little angry when he said, "You're seeing a lot of that mother and son, aren't you, Noel?"

"But they're leaving tomorrow," Noel protested, "And we've so much to do before they go." She tried to make her smile gay and nonchalant. "That's why I'll have to be leaving you now, dear."

In the cab going to Sand's where she was to meet them, Noel thought: I'd better not tell them about the play, or that I might miss the party, until I'm more certain.

Noel saw Allan at once, as the cab slowed up in front of the big Avenue store. He was stamping his feet on the sidewalk and anxiously watching the approaching crowds of people. When he saw Noel alight from the cab, he crossed the sidewalk.

"I thought you'd never come," but he smiled as he said it. "You're awfully impatient about waiting for people, aren't you, Allan?" Noel offered her hand and they went into the shop together.

"Mother had a slight headache and we thought she'd better stay in her room for a few hours," Allan explained. "Too much excitement, I suppose."

Sincere concern filled Noel's words. "I'm so sorry about your mother—and I wish you could stir up a little enthusiasm about the plan."

As they stopped at the handkerchief counter, Noel remarked, "I'll miss you both when you go home tomorrow."

Allan pulled her arm playfully. "But you'll be coming up soon, don't forget that."

They dashed through the shops, examining and rejecting dozens of things for the guests they had never seen.

"A muffler's the thing for Archie, the Mouse," Allan decided. "I remember he was always so cold."

They chose a warm woolen scarf with blue figures in it and then decided that men always needed scarfs, so they got a gay gray and white one for the jobless young architect, Tommy.

"I wonder what Mrs. Barton's like," Noel conjectured. "I've an idea she's so tiny."

Allan threw back his head and laughed. "You obviously haven't met too many navy widows," he said. "My guess is she's buxom."

They discussed the hundred possibilities of their prospective guests' preferences and Allan bought more than Noel thought, he should. Handkerchiefs, a bag for Mrs. Barton—and even perfume for the two younger girls.

"We'll have a Christmas tree?" Noel asked hopefully.

"Of course. What would Christmas be without candy canes and red balls hanging from a tree?" Allan retorted.

"And a Santa Claus, and the Star of Bethlehem."

Broken Baubles
They went swinging along, dashing in doorways, hurrying over blocks, and they stopped together in front of a five-and-ten.

"We'll need some more ornaments," Allan explained.

So they fought their way through the crowds round every counter. "We'll have to carry these," Noel reminded him as Allan rounded up dozens of gayly colored balls and miles of tinsel. And just when they thought they had enough for ten trees, Allan spied some gleaming silver stars and they had to go back for them.

Both pairs of arms were laden with the light, bulky boxes. By the time Allan had signaled a taxi and got them both in it one of his rolls of tinsel had become unwrapped and he was dragging a strand of the glistening stuff after him.

They sank back into the comfortable seat of the cab. "We need some reviving after this exploit," Allan announced, and he directed the driver to the Star Club.

People turned after them and smiled as they made their way to a table in the well-filled cocktail room. Allan wouldn't check the packages. "They'd get smashed," he insisted.

"This has been lovely, Allan," Noel told him softly as they sipped a Martini. "If it hadn't been for meeting your mother I'd have missed all this." Her laugh trickled over the room like light gay music. "Now I'm full of Christmas cheer."

"Well, I've never seen Mother so excited about Christmas, either," Allan admitted. "She swears it was her guardian angel sent you to her," Allan grinned at Noel as he added, "You should hear her singing your praises—it might make you conceited."

"She's the angel, Allan," Noel's eyes were misty. "You can't realize what knowing her has meant to me these days."

"Oh, I say nice things about you, too," Allan started. Noel saw his hand push away the glass quickly. She looked at his face and his cheeks were white under the tan, and she followed his glance across the room—

A tall young woman in full length sable coat had her back toward them. Soft, shiny blonde curls escaped from under her blue velvet cap.

"Let's go," Allan's voice was husky and Noel thought she never knew his eyes could quickly hold so much misery. He called for the waiter, paid his check, and they picked up their packages.

As they neared the group at the bar, the girl turned round and saw Allan.

"Darling," she cried, "I've been thinking about you."

"Hello, Elaine," Allan's voice was a flat monotone. He dropped one of the boxes, and Christmas balls sprawled over the floor.

Playing Santa Claus early, dear heart? Elaine's tones were all ice. "Mrs. Schuyler, this is Noel Marchand," Allan introduced them awkwardly.

"Oh, Miss Marchand," a new note in Elaine's voice. To Allan she said much softer. "I must see you, Allan; there's so much to tell you—"

Santa and the Lost Princess

By SIGRID ARNE

THE STORY SO FAR: The mean Queen steals Princess Hulda. You remember Hulda is now very small because she ate the magic cookie.

Chapter 14

The One-Eyed Giant

FOR a day and a night the mean Queen and her soldiers and Hulda rode up and down snowy mountains on the way back to their home. They had seen nothing but an occasional wolf that bared his teeth at them in the woods and then loped off.

But then something dreadful happened. It was at noon on the second day. The sun was shining. But suddenly a great shadow fell across their path. Then right in front of the Queen there stepped a huge foot. It was on a leg as big as an oak tree. The Queen trembled but she gathered courage to look up, and she looked up, up, up, until she looked into a huge round face with only one eye set in the middle of the forehead.

"Great Heavens! stop frightening people like that," she snapped. She was so mean, you see, that she was never frightened for more than a second. But Hulda, riding in her coat pocket, took one look at the one-eyed giant and hid her face in her hands.

"What are you doing here?" said the giant, and his voice rumbled so that it shook the ground.

"Why I'm riding. Can't you see with that one eye of yours?" said the Queen.

"Never mind my one eye," said the giant. "It seems to me you have extremely bad manners. I think I'll take you along and teach you some good ones."

He Scooped Up the Queen

So he whipped from his pocket a big red handkerchief and scooped the Queen and her soldiers and all their horses into it, and slung them over his shoulder like you and I would sling a bag of apples. He strode through the forest, stepping on pine trees and over mountains and finally he came to a great snowy plain that stretched far and wide. There wasn't a thing to be seen except right in the middle the largest castle you can imagine, built of gray stone with four great towers, one at each corner.

That was the giant's home. He lived there with all his people and all of them had no eyes at all. That was why he was King because he had at least one eye, and he could see.

Now he strode into his banquet hall and over to a big table where he spread out the big red handkerchief that held the Queen and her soldiers. They scrambled to their feet. The giant watched and laughed and his laugh was like a long rumble of thunder.

He reached down and picked up the Queen with his forefinger and his thumb. She squeaked but this time she said nothing. He turned her around and took off her coat. "My, my, you people wear fine trappings," he said. Then he saw something. He saw Hulda's tiny head sticking out of the Queen's coat pocket. Her blue eyes were wide and so bright with fright that the giant picked her up very gently. When she stood on the palm of his hand she was no bigger than his little finger.

Washing the Dishes
"Well, well," said the giant. "So the Queen has stolen you somewhere, eh?"

"Why, yes, Sir," said Hulda. Then she thought better and said, "Why, no, Sir."

The giant chuckled. "You mean she did," said the giant. "Well I've something for her to do while you entertain me."

He glowered down at the Queen, and said, "It shouldn't take you and your soldiers more than three hours to wash up my breakfast dishes."

"Why, the very—why—" sputtered the Queen and then she thought she'd better be careful, so she said, "I think we can."

"That's better," said the giant. "You'll learn some manners yet." So he picked up the Queen and her soldiers and strode out to his huge kitchen and dumped them all on the kitchen board, and told them to go to work. Washing ordinary size dishes wouldn't have bothered anyone, but you see the giant's plates were so big that the Queen and twenty of her soldiers could stand on one of them at one time. And it took ten of them to lift the dish rag. There the giant left them and strode back to demand entertainment from Hulda who was so frightened that her hands were icy.

Tomorrow: Hulda teaches the Queen a lesson.

U. S. LOOKS FOR CASH IN MUSICA SWINDLE CASE

New York, Dec. 20 (AP)—Federal investigators said today they were hopeful of salvaging "considerable cash" of the $10,000,000 to $20,000,000 which the late Philip Musica is suspected of swindling from the McKesson and Robbins drug corporation.

The announcement followed a statement by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey that he already had uncovered evidence the four Musica brothers had collected actual cash commissions of $3,903,103 through fictitious sales of crude drugs.

Dewey said his investigation, not yet completed, indicated that the thefts might go as high as $16,259,375. Acting United States Attorney Gregory Noonan said several days ago the losses might reach $20,000,000.

Complicated System
An extremely complicated book-keeping system used by Musica, alias "F. Donald Coster," who killed himself last Friday, has delayed officials in reaching immediately an accurate estimate of the funds involved.

Dewey, who obtained grand jury indictments charging the three surviving brothers with grand larceny and forgery, said they "milked" the corporation's crude drugs department through fictitious sales to at least five dummy companies.

The brothers, Dewey said, paid out huge sums in commissions to the dummy companies for "sales" of crude drugs which Coster listed as stored in corporation warehouses. The district attorney said the money went to the Musicas and that the sales, the drugs, and the warehouses all were non-existent.

The deception was not detected, investigators said, because "Coster," president of the firm, told other company officials he was using profits from the crude drugs department to expand it. He had forged bills of goods and fraudulent warehouse receipts to convince them.

What happened to the money—and its present whereabouts—have been among the chief problems facing investigators. Authorities apparently have shelved their first belief that the missing funds might represent unpaid bills for illegal international arms and ammunition shipments which the self-slain eldest brother is accused of arranging as a profitable sideline in a career of crime including drug adulteration, large-scale bootlegging, smuggling and income tax evasion.

through questioning relatives of the Musicas, to obtain clues enabling them to recover a substantial portion of the stolen assets.

Expect to Find Cash
"Considerable of this must be in cash," said Brien McMahon, assistant United States attorney general, "we are seeking safety deposit vaults. When we find them we expect to find considerable cash."

McMahon described the eldest Musica, who ran the drug firm and hid his criminal past under the "F. Donald Coster" pseudonym, as probably the "biggest illicit liquor dealer in the country." He said the federal inquiry would result in the indictment of persons of "great prominence."

"This case has more widespread ramifications than any other fraud case in my memory," he remarked. The body of Philip Musica, who shot himself to death last Friday, was interred in a Brooklyn mausoleum Monday. His widow and two hand-cuffed brothers attended funeral services.

The surviving brothers, to be questioned regarding disposition of the vanished assets, are George Musica, alias George Dietrich, assistant treasurer of the drug company; Arthur Musica, alias George Verward, Canadian agent, and Robert Musica, alias Robert Dietrich, purchasing agent for the corporation's Bridgeport, Connecticut, subsidiary.

EARLE ENROUTE HOME
Harrisburg, Dec. 20 (AP)—Governor Earle, who has been vacationing in France, will return to the capital the day before Christmas. His office was informed that he would arrive in New York on the Normandie Thursday, spend a day there, and stop at his Haverford home before coming here.

MARRY FOR XMAS

Pittsburgh.—A black-robed Santa Claus gave the six Hand children their father and mother for Christmas. After 24 years of married life, Mr. and Mrs. Hope B. Hand were divorced a month ago. But yesterday, at their request, Judge M. A. Musmanno remarried the couple so they might spend the yule holiday with their children.

HIGH-POWERED SAFE

Bozeman, Mont.—Burglars slipped into the Bozeman feed company, intent on cracking the safe. Unaware the company's circuits carry twice the usual voltage, the burglars hooked up their electric drill. The high current proved a safety device—the drill burned out. The safe was saved.

NIGHT OWLS

Mount Hope, W. Va.—Joe Gines-tria locked his chicken coope and went to bed. Came the dawn and the flock was gone, so he called police. Then his flock came home and Joe discovered he'd locked them out.

SOUND SLEEPER

Minneapolis.—For Ronald Abramson, double feature movies are sleep producers—at least when they are seen twice at one sitting. Ronald slept undisturbed through a couple of shows unmindful that his parents and police were searching for him. Ronald's father, on his fourth trip to the theatre, finally located him just as the last customer was leaving the playhouse. Ronald, who is five, was asleep underneath a row of seats.

ARTISTIC SAFE

Denver.—Night Watchman Lloyd Wilson, making his rounds, stopped to peer through a window at the safe-a-nickel store's office safe. The safe didn't look quite right. Wilson investigated, discovered; Burglars had carted off the original with its $3,500 contents. Wilson was looking at a clever cardboard replica.

Evanston, Ill.—The new women's hats, it seems, has left at least one man baffled rather than amused. He entered an Evanston women's hat store, but couldn't find one to his (or his girl's) taste. He uncovered every box marked size 22 in his vain search and then left the way he came—through a hole

SCRIP BURNED

Atlantic City, N. J., Dec. 28 (AP)—A $100,996 fire occurred Monday in the city hall at suburban Ventnor—and no one tried to put it out. Scrip once worth that much was burned in the furnace by order of the city council. Issued in darker days, it had been redeemed in payment of taxes, license fees and other municipal charges.

PRESCRIPTIONS and PRICE TAGS

It is true that we make no effort to price our prescriptions on a "bargain counter" basis. Yet, because our volume is large, our costs are low. A prescription compounded here costs no more—and perhaps even less—than you would pay elsewhere. And you are advantaged by our large stocks of fresh, potent drugs, our high ethical standards, and our invariable policy of filling every prescription precisely as the Doctor directs.

1938 Associated Press Highlights

News of the Year in Pictures

COURT CALLER Trial of Tammany chieftain James J. Hines (center) on policy racket conspiracy charges, ended in N. Y. when Justice Pecora declared a mistrial, ruling "prejudicial" a question put by Thomas Dewey.

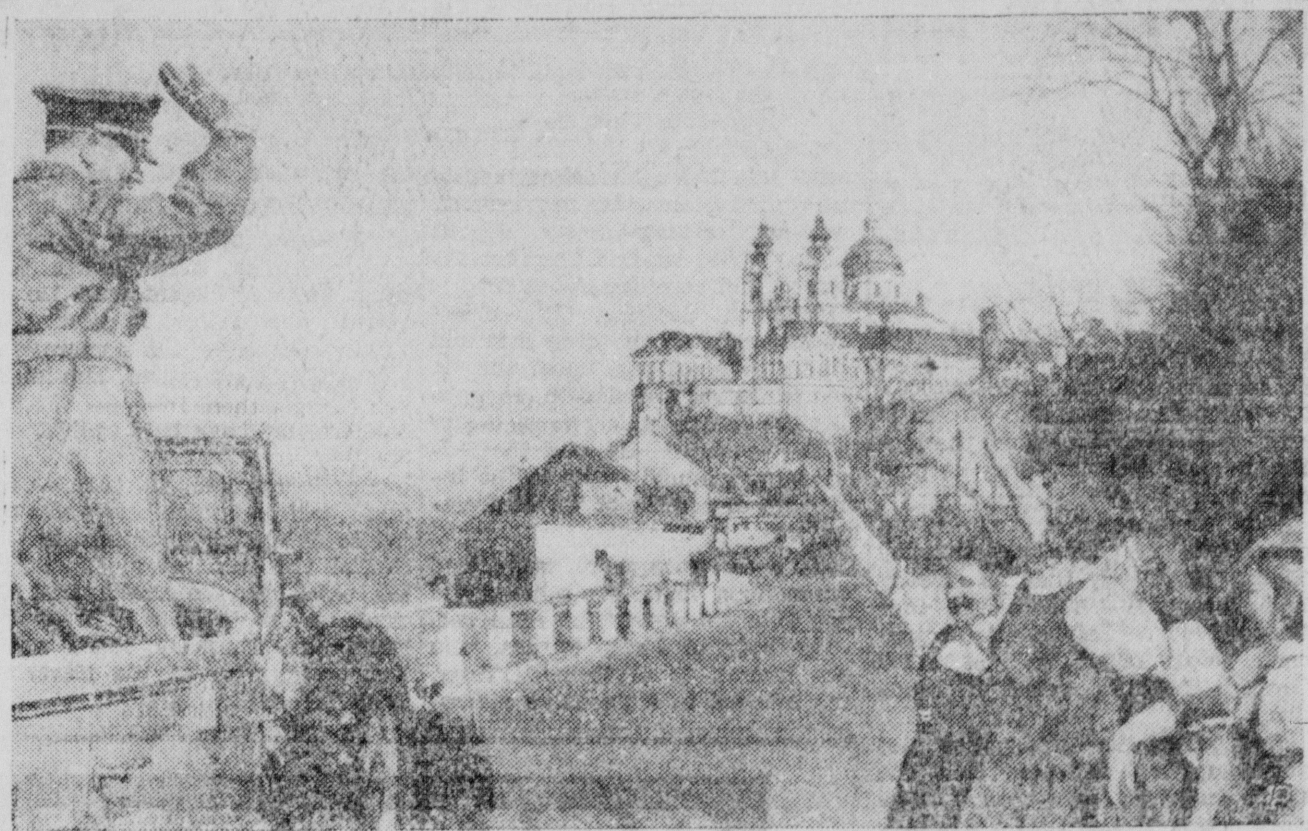

EAST IS EAST The western world, especially U. S. and Britain, learned soon after Japan entered Canton (as above), South China's war supplies gateway, that Japan was closing China's "open door" in an Asia for Asiatics policy foreshadowing exclusion of western powers from Chinese trade. Chinese puppet states give Japanese a virtual trade monopoly. In Europe's war, Spanish insurgents reached an autumn deadlock trying to widen the wedge between government Catalonia and Madrid.

CRIME Confession of Franklin McCall solved kidnap-death of James Cash, Jr. (above), 5, at Princeton, Fla. Equally brutal was murder of kidnaped Peter Levine, 12, of N. Y.

GAIN His biggest battle was won by Gen. John J. Pershing, 78, who almost died in February, toured France in August, saluted dead war comrades Nov. 11. Another World War figure, Kamal Ataturk, 58, dictator of modern Turkey, died Nov. 10.

TO UNION IN VIENNA Past countless unpraised arms such as these "helling the hero" along the Danube, Adolf Hitler drove to Vienna last spring and on Mar. 13 proclaimed the union of Austria and Germany and defied the world to part them. Almost overnight the Austrian peasant's son who'd once pored over an atlas saying, "I'm making German boundaries larger, larger," had added 32,339 square miles and 6,769,000 people to the Third Reich. He'd given Germany a geographical gateway to the grain-raising, oil-bearing Balkans.

RECORD FLIGHT Unshaven Howard Hughes (hat, facing camera) set his lanky frame down on N. Y. soil July 14 after he and four companions flew 14,824 miles, encircling the globe in a record 3 days 19 hrs. 14 mins.

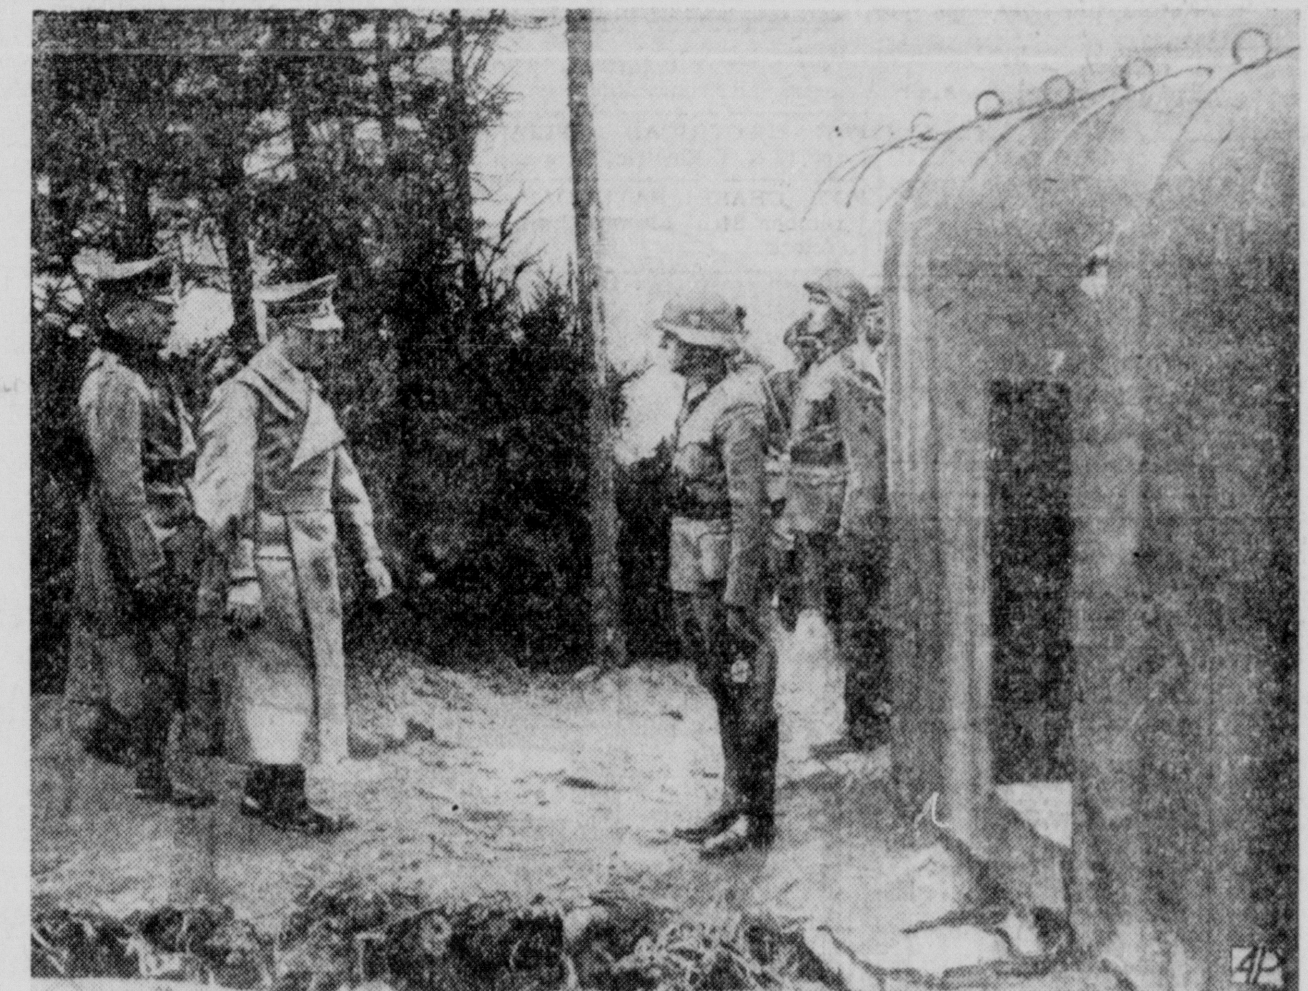

ERROR "I thought I was heading for California," insisted Douglas Corrigan after unsanctioned flight from N. Y. to Ireland in a wheezy $900 plane. Trip took 28 hrs. 13 mins.

NAZI STORM Paris assassination of German diplomat Ernst vom Rath by Herschel Grynszpan, 17, Polish Jew, turned the full wrath of Nazis—who launched their anti-Semitic campaign in 1933—down on 700,000 Reich Jews. Their property was damaged (above), they were fined $400,000,000. U. S. recalled her envoy for a report, amid mounting refugee problems.

THE FRUITS OF MUNICH Mixed were the blessings of Munich when, on a war-jittery Sept. 29, Europe's "Big Four" met and decided that Czechoslovakia's Sudetenland, which Hitler coveted, was not too big a price to pay for peace. Left to right: Goering, Hitler, a German interpreter, Italy's Count Ciano, Mussolini, France's Daladier, England's Chamberlain, and French Ambassador Francois-Poncet. Germany won 3 1/2 million Sudetens and 10,885 square miles for her "drive to the east"; France lost European dominance.

BOHEMIAN BASTION FALLS Whether his "made in Munich" conquest of Sudetenland started Hitler toward a clash with Russia or set him on a Berlin-to-Baghdad route that's been a German dream since Bismarck, statesmen do not know. Hitler (front) is inspecting a former Czech pillbox near the "bastion"—those mountains that had been a natural guardian for the Czechs' western boundary. More than any one factor, Hitler's 1938 gains through threat of military force, directed attention of U. S. to her defenses.

CIO CHRISTENING PARTY Labor history repeated itself in November when at Pittsburgh, where Gompers launched the A. F. of L., the 3-year-old Committee for Industrial Organization became Congress of Industrial Organizations, named as president John L. Lewis, shaking hands with Vice President Phil Murray (left).

ATLANTIC TASTES HURRICANE From the Caribbean sea—mother of storms—roared a September hurricane whose 100-mile wind and rains took 500 lives and damaged property worth many millions in seven northeastern states. This was once Pleasant View House at Misquamicut in hard-hit Rhode Island.

PACIFIC COAST DELUGE Californians shoveled mud out of their living rooms last March after successive days of torrential rains had flooded rivers in the Los Angeles area, threatening palatial film colony homes, washing out bridges such as this railroad span in Los Angeles, and doing damage estimated at close to $60,000,000.

VOTERS VERDICT To Judge Arthur H. James (above), who hunted ducks in celebration, went Republican governorship of Pennsylvania in an election that saw defeat of Michigan's Roosevelt-endorsed Frank Murphy, repudiation of LaFollette's third party, victory for "purgees," and G.O.P. gain of 12 governors, 8 senators, 81 representatives.
